

CUHK–Columbia University Master of Science in Bioethics Scholarship Programme 2019/20

The CUHK–Columbia University Annual Bioethics Scholarship Programme aims to support full-time staff and post-graduate students from the Chinese University of Hong Kong to participate in Columbia University's Master's Programme in Bioethics at the School of Professional Studies.

The Master of Science in Bioethics, part of Columbia University's Programmes in Bioethics grounds students in historical, philosophical, legal, and social-scientific approaches and models to address bioethical challenges. The programme prepares students to work in various capacities within this new and ever-growing field, and includes a concentration in global bioethics – the first of its kind in the United States.
